On this Sunday before Thanksgiving designated "Ingathering Sunday," members will make their personal stewardship commitments for the coming year. Commitment cards will be placed in a special chest located in a harvest display at the pulpit. The pastor will preach at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services on the subject, "When Jesus Watched the

Downtown Torrance Stores Start 'Talk Turkey' Sales Event Today

Downtown Torrance retail merchants will be "Talking Turkey" today through Saturday as they offer storewide bargains during the pre-Thanksgiving sale. Shoppers will not only be able to gobble up values, but also will have a chance to walk away with one of the 25 free turkeys to be given away during the sales event. Coupons which will appear in the advertising of downtown merchants today should be clipped out and deposited at one of the participating stores. Winners need not be present, but will be notified. The winners will be selected and notified Monday in plenty of time to get their bird in the oven for Thanksgiving Day festivities. "This is the kind of an event where there are no losers," said Abe Robinson, president of the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce. "While 25 shoppers will get turkeys as a bonus, the others will find pre-holiday values throughout the downtown Torrance stores which will make their shopping trips worthwhile," he added.

Costs of Torrance Schools About $1.5 Million Below 1959 Average

Because the Torrance Unified School District's costs were considerably lower than the county average, Torrance taxpayers saved about 55 cents on their tax rate and a total of about $1.5 million last year. That was what School Board Member Clinton Cooke told the Torrance Educational Advisory Committee Monday noon at the Torrance Masonic Hall. "Noting 'rumblings' before and after the recent override election, which was defeated, Cooke denied charges that (1) there is lots of "water" in the budget and (2) that "nobody has looked at the budget in the past 13 years."

TWO INDUSTRY representatives, Robert Plomert, Mobil Oil, and Fred W. Mill, National Supply, told the group that industry pays 60 per cent of the taxes in Torrance and has examined the school budget closely for 13 years. "The Torrance Unified School District is operating economically, but still needs more money," Plomert said. "After study, the Torrance Industries Tax Committee backed the proposal unanimously."

"THE OVERRIDE proposal would have cost my company $25,000 more a year," said Mill. "It would have cost Union Carbide and additional $57,000 a year. It would have cost the Mobil Oil Co. $122,500 annually. Do you think that they are going to approve any tax proposal without looking carefully at the budget?" Cooke noted that "it is harder to explain facts than to make charges."

TORRANCE operating costs last year were $62 per pupil below the county average and for the total budget about $1.5 million lower than the "average." During the past four years, Torrance taxpayers have paid about $5.4 million less than the "average" district. Among major reasons why Torrance has been below average, he said, were these economies:

1. Increasing class size from 30 to 34, over several years, saves about $500,000 annually.
 2. Doubling kindergarten teachers' loads save about $100,000 each year.
 3. Central library facilities not only are more efficient, but save about $60,000 annually in librarians' salaries.
 4. Eliminating special subject supervisors, common in many districts, save some $100,000 a year.
 5. The "8-4 plan," with students attending elementary school rather than junior highs in grade 7 and 8, means $380,000 annually.
- THESE economies, he said, mean that Torrance's tax rate last year was about 55 cents less than the "average" district. He noted that the Board of Education controls the budget by reports on all departments and operations of the district. "We have sought quality at an economical price," he said. "Our books are open." Superintendent J. H. Hull said that he was not optimistic

"THIS HAS been discussed for 50 years and we're still waiting," he said. "The real issue is whether we're willing to settle for second-rate education by not spending enough money."

WHAT'S DOING
R. S. Pyle, your Telephone Manager in Torrance

Maintaining phone lines is a never ending job! To keep phone lines ready for your calls, men in Telephone Patrol planes fly along hundreds of miles of phone cable nearly every day. They're on the lookout for construction work or other hazards that might damage underground or overhead lines. They warn anyone on the ground working near cables by dropping notes or calling to them over the plane's loudspeaker system. Other cable patrols on foot, in trucks and snow vehicles travel along phone lines to spot hazards before they cause trouble. It seems like a lot of work, but this is the surest way to keep your telephone service ready for you, whenever you need it.

Cultivating a "telephone farm" is the unusual project of some Bell Telephone Laboratories engineers. It's an experiment with new materials for underground telephone equipment - the "plants" they've buried are pieces of wire, cable, and metals. These will be dug up periodically to see which ones are in the best condition. The "telephone farm" will help our engineers find the best materials for a faster and less expensive way to put telephone equipment underground. And it will mean another new saving to help your telephone dollar go further.

Any housewife who has once enjoyed the convenience of a telephone on her bedside table is seldom willing to give it up. Besides saving steps, a bedroom phone lets you make calls with more privacy. Sleep's a little safer, too. Today you can order for your bedside the beautiful new "Princess" phone. It's small, has a built-in night light, and the dial lights up for easy dialing. Drop by or call your telephone business office to order a "Princess" extension phone for your bedroom. Pacific Telephone
